

Effective 8/1/11

UK Robinson Center for Appalachian Resource Sustainability (RCARS)

Robinson Forest and Robinson Camp Use and User Policy

The Robinson Forest and the Robinson Forest Camp facilities are open for users and uses that fall under the goals and objectives of the University of Kentucky, further the land grant mission, and are consistent with educational, research, and service opportunities focused on forest, natural resource and conservation subjects. These criteria allow for a wide range of users and uses and evaluation of each proposed facility use is based on these criteria. All users and uses must conform to the policy and procedures for the Robinson Forest. Facility arrangements are made through the Robinson Center for Appalachian Resource Sustainability office. Approval of proposed facility use is based upon the criteria provided above and availability. Requests for on-site assistance, guides, and presentations, must be made independently of the facility use request.

Robinson Forest Project and Visitor Policy

1. All in-Forest projects on the UK Robinson Forest must have prior approval from the Robinson Forest Technical Committee. Approval is initiated using the "Robinson Forest Project Submission Instructions and Form" found at robinson-forest.ca.uky.edu. If you have any questions after reviewing this policy and project submission form, please contact the Robinson Forest.
